Happening at Healing Ribbons

Ribbon cutting on the front steps of Healing Ribbons

Healing Ribbons celebrated its Open House on April 18th, 2025.
We were elated to welcome the community to our new space!

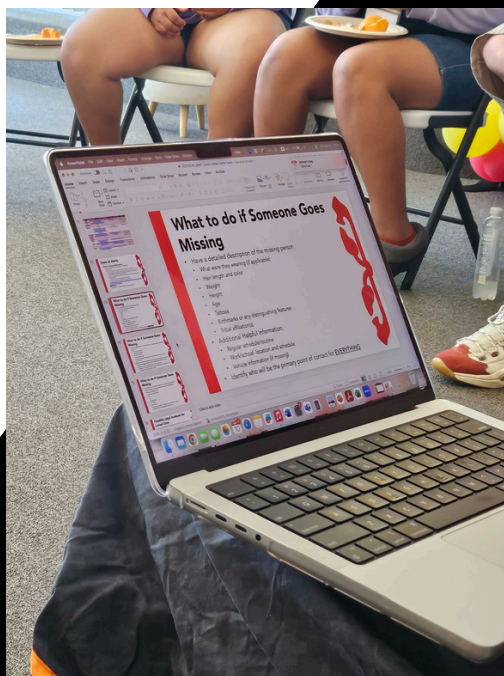

Here at Healing Ribbons, we are grateful for all that happened over the months, from our Open House to community gatherings. We have been able to expand our programming at our new building.

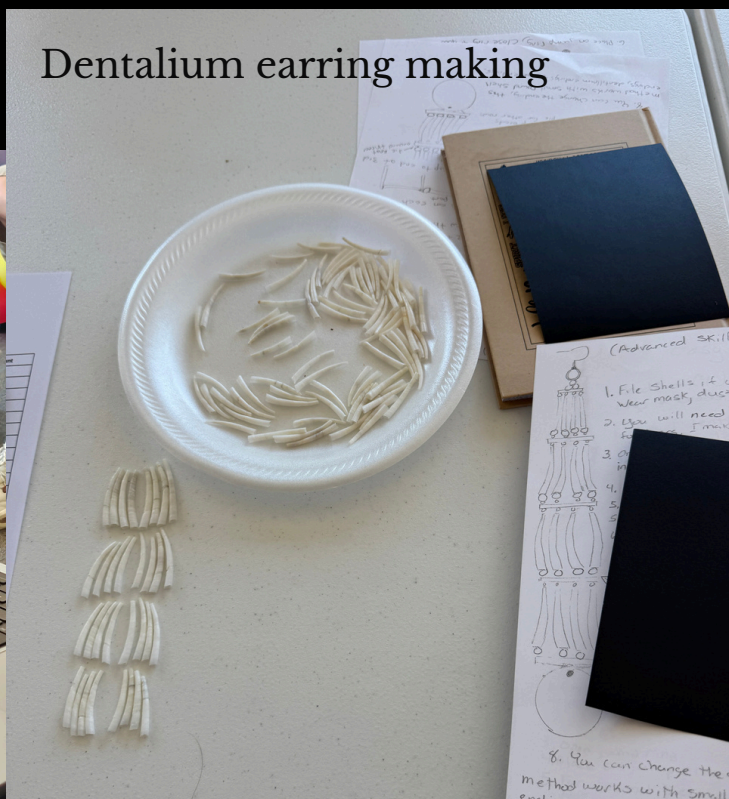

In addition to our Art of Healing Cohort sessions, we host Open Sewing for the Omaha Native Community. We also now have a designated children's playroom for children to occupy during our sessions, allowing caregivers to fully participate in our gatherings.

This quarter, we have held multiple talking circles comprised of young adults up to elderly age. The knowledge and vulnerability shown in the circles have been moving. Many participants are grateful for the opportunity to share with others.

Common Threads: Open Sewing Sessions

Open Sewing sessions take place twice a week—on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 5 PM to 7 PM. These sessions provide a welcoming space for all community members working on a project. Those in attendance have access to sewing machines, irons, and culture bearers to assist as needed.

Support Healing Ribbons

Healing Ribbons is growing, and we could use your help! Our Amazon wishlist includes items needed for our programming and new building. Every contribution, big or small, helps us create a welcoming space for healing and cultural expression. Scan the QR code to view our wishlist!

Meet the New Board members

Come meet our newest board members!

Georgiana Lee

Georgiana Lee, a proud member of the Diné (Navajo) tribe, holds a Bachelor's in Journalism and Theater from Creighton University in Omaha. Her career in non-profit and public media has largely focused on helping Indigenous filmmakers navigate the Public Broadcasting System (PBS) to achieve national broadcast. Lee is deeply committed to uplifting Indigenous women, Two-Spirit relatives, and their families, aligning perfectly with the mission of organizations like Healing Ribbons.

Lisa Prue Spellman, an enrolled member of the Sicangu Oyate of the Rosebud Sioux Tribe, serves as the Program Manager and Tribal Community Liaison for the Nebraska-HEALING program at the University of Nebraska Medical Center (UNMC). Her impactful work includes spearheading the "Wagaze" education summit for the Ponca Tribe of Nebraska, which earned her the Association of American Medical Colleges GIA Award for Excellence in 2023, and receiving the Great Plains Health Warrior award from the National Indian Health Board in 2024.

Celebrating Our Relatives

In each issue, we uplift our Healing Ribbons participants and community members.
This month we are recognizing Jen Cruell, a Healing Ribbons participant

Meet Jen Cruell

Rosebud Sioux

On how she learned about Healing Ribbons: “I saw postings on social media about Healing Ribbons and was excited to see a new cohort starting at the beginning of the year.”

When asked what brings her a sense of healing, Jen shared: “Sewing brings me comfort and helps me to feel closer to my Grandma as she was an excellent seamstress. My grandma would often make star quilts that I would help her with or play with my barbies under the quilt while she was sewing.”
